

I am better off explaining myself in a thorough letter instead of by a traditional resume. I did not attend college due to the many problems and difficulties I have endured throughout my life. I am a 23-year-old Brazilian male, since Brazilian universities are mediocre, I have decided to teach myself various subjects. I am self-taught in the subject of philosophy with a focus on Platonic philosophy, Scottish and British Enlightenments, the ideologies of the American and French revolutions, left-wing and communistic philosophy, American conservatism, and how philosophy is related to law and human nature. I am also self-taught in the field of history, with a focus on American history, Roman history, and the history of Christianity. The other subjects I have taught myself are political science, finance, economics, and theology. I am looking for a job in which I can use my analytical skills to improve the functioning of a business or in the marketing for a company.

I blend my study of philosophy and history with studying businesses that thrived and failed. I sought to understand the core elements of the structure of a business and how to potentialize them in the part of society they operate. To understand a product or service is to understand how it meets one of the many needs that constitute the wholesome of human necessity. Recognizing the core elements that define a business and how current legislation, consumer trends, and the overall economic scenario affect those elements then making a plan of restructuring to maximize profitability is what I am able to do.

In my process of analysis, I do not use advanced financial mathematics. I am familiar with the core concepts of corporate finance and economics to enable me to know where to direct resources. Understanding what constitutes civilization and the most important elements of human nature are the driving concepts of my analysis.

What enables me to work in marketing is my capacity to understand the most pivotal elements of a company and a product with easiness then translate the essence of a product into an engaging advertisement for consumers. In my study of Platonic philosophy understanding human perception and how to influence people was one of the most important subjects. I understand how to craft an advertisement that will attract consumers by first catching their attention and then relating the product to a fundamental need.

I ask any company to try me out by giving an initial assignment on how to improve their business and keep it intact before a bleak economic scenario. I will not fail!

My name is Paulo Mikael Orofino Soares. I was born on March 1st 2000. I am male. My email for business contacts is paulomikaelbusiness777@gmail.com.

